

I consider the airing of the Sinclair movie against John Kerry to be abuse of the public airways and should be stopped.

I would like the FCC to consider requiring cable companies to allow users to block stations they do not want. The number of blocked households for a specific station should then be a matter of public record. This would give the people more power over the broadcasters since the crass "reality" shows would lose market share and stunts like Sinclair is pulling would result in immediate consequences.
